Printing offices are not run for the fun of the thing. They are business enterprises, plain and simple. An exchange well says that it is just as logical to ask a newspaper man to donate a certain amount of cash to a private enterprise as to give the use of his type without even an acknowledgment.

Sheriff Decker is thinking seriously of locating at Deshler when his official term is out, embarking in the elevator business. Should he do so he will carry with him the well wishes of hosts of friends. Deshler should be a good point for an elevator, and its citizens can afford to give substantial encouragement to Mr. Decker and his proposed enterprise.
